

WEDNESDAY, 4 DECEMBER

|             |                                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|-------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 8:00-8:45   | Registration                                                                                                                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| 8:45-9:00   | Opening of conference (HSS Auditorium, Level B1)Prof KK Luke, Acting Chair of the School of Humanities                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| 9:00-10:00  | Plenary @ HSS Auditorium, Level B1Speaker: Anna Sjöberg, recipient of the Greenberg AwardTitle: Knowledge predication - a semantic typology                |                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| 10:00-10:30 | Morning tea                                                                                                                                                                      |                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|             | DravidianSeminar Room 9 (Level B1)Chair: Martin Haspelmath                                                                                                               | Mirativity/Reported SpeechSeminar Room 8 (Level 1)Chair: Ljuba Veselinova                                                                                | Valency/AgreementSeminar Room 7 (Level 1)Chair: Anna Bugaeva                                                                                           | Sino-Tibetan/Kra-DaiSeminar Room 6 (Level 1)Chair: Alexander R. Coupe                                                                                                |
| 10:30-11:00 | Anindita Sahoo, Akshay Rajan, &amp; Foong Ha YapOn the extended uses of copulas in Malayalam and other Dravidian languages                                                   | Philippe Antoine MartinezEngagement as part of the broader domain of knowledge management in Chhitkul-Rākchham (West-Himalayish): the postverbal clitic =nir | Lilian GuerreroValency and body parts: alternative coding of dressing/undressing events                                                                    | Wen Lu, Man Shan Hui, &amp; Pui Yiu SzetoConvergence zones in Central China                                                                                              |
| 11:00-11:30 | Johan van der Auwera &amp; Umarani Pappuswamy'At least' indefinites in Dravidian                                                                                             | Lingzi ZhuangTowards a parametrically-articulated typology of mirativity                                                                                     | Jerzy GaszewskiSurlatives as valency markers: exploring a pattern in argument marking found in European languages                                          | Shuya Zhang &amp; Yunfan LaiRevisiting recipient-beneficiary marking in Mainland Southeast Asian languages: the versatile lo <sup>51</sup> in Jiamao (oral)              |
| 11:30-12:00 | Gunti Prem Sagar, Foong Ha Yap, &amp; Anindita SahooOn the intransitivizing uses of kon/kol in Dravidian languages                                                           | Denys Teptiuk &amp; Tatiana NikitinaTowards a typology of scope and position misalignment: The case of reported speech constructions                         | Kevin BehrensVerbal agreement in European sign languages                                                                                                   | Muhammad Zakaria &amp; David A. PetersonPathways between applicative, causative, and middle                                                                              |
| 12:00-13:30 | Lunch                                                                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|             | CaseSeminar Room 9 (Level B1)Chair: Sonia Cristofaro                                                                                                                     | ClassifiersSeminar Room 8 (Level 1)Chair: Yunfan Lai                                                                                                     | Word OrderSeminar Room 7 (Level 1)Chair: I Wayan Arka                                                                                                  | Word Class and AdjectivesSeminar Room 6 (Level 1)Chair: Johan van der Auwera                                                                                         |
| 13:30-14:00 | Yui SuzukiDifferential subject marking in Turkish complement clauses: A corpus study                                                                                         | Qi HuangContrast and referentiality of Meixian Hakka numeral classifiers in exophoric and endophoric contexts—implications for grammaticalization scenarios  | Liwei Gong, Satoshi Uehara, &amp; Heiko NarrogWord order variation split by predication types: subject-predicate word order in predicate-initial languages | Kira Davey &amp; Keira MullanBeyond canonical typology: A framework for the typological study of major word classes                                                      |
| 14:00-14:30 | Jiang LingExploring Cross-Linguistic Patterns in Experiencer Constructions                                                                                                   | Agnes ConradBare Classifiers in a Contact Zone of Southwest China: Case study of Eastern Minyag                                                              | Yasutomo Kuwana &amp; Hisao TokizakiOrder of Noun and Adjective in Word Order Typology                                                                     | Luca Alfieri, Daniela Baldassarre, Diego Luinetti, Leonardo Montesi, &amp; Maria SimonielloLevels of analysis, quality modifier encoding and adjectival typology         |
| 14:30-15:00 | Naonori Nagaya &amp; Mai HayashiDifferential object marking in Tagalog                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                         | Nikolaus P. HimmelmannProsody in the study of word order: when is a language V-initial?                                                                    | Luca AlfieriHow much history in typology? A typologically-consistent, text-based, quantitative approach to the reconstruction of the Proto-Indo-European adjective class |
| 15:00-15:30 | Afternoon tea                                                                                                                                                                    |                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|             | ConditionalsSeminar Room 9 (Level B1)Chair: Jeanette Sakel                                                                                                               | Verbal MorphologySeminar Room 8 (Level 1)Chair: Michael Dunn                                                                                             | Cognitive/LexicalSeminar Room 7 (Level 1)Chair: Gede Rajeg                                                                                             | PhonologySeminar Room 6 (Level 1)Chair: Shelece EASTERDAY                                                                                                            |
| 15:30-16:00 | Tom BossuytImproving the semantic map of additivity: Free-choice indefinite pronouns and universal concessive conditionals                                                   | Katherine Walker &amp; Eva van LierA typology of conditional indexing                                                                                        | Wiltrud MihatschHow grammar steers lexical change: linking linguistic relativity and lexical typology                                                      | Lulu Zou &amp; Cathryn YangA diachronic typological approach to the development of complex contour tones                                                                 |
| 16:00-16:30 | Jesus OlguinThe interaction of irrealis markers in conditional constructions: A typological account                                                                          | Tom KossFuture and past tenses in binary tense systems                                                                                                       | Edmond Cane &amp; Artur JaupajEvolution and entrenchment of basic color terms in Albanian from a usage-based cognitivist angle                             | Carolyn SiegmanFricatives or approximants: A typology of stop-to-continuant processes                                                                                    |
| 16:30-17:00 | Phillip G. Rogers &amp; Jesus OlguinIf we hadn't done this, we wouldn't know: A cross-linguistic analysis of competing strategies for expressing counterfactual conditionals | Egor KashkinA non-standard grammaticalization path of visual perception verbs: evidence from Tatyshly Udmurt"                                                | Anna SjöbergPatterns of motivation in cognition lexicon                                                                                                    | Ronald P. Schaefer &amp; Francis O. EgbokhareTense, Temporal Distance, and Tone: A Case Study from West Africa                                                           |
| 17:00-17:30 |                                                                                                                                                                                         | Wesley Kuhron JonesHow pragmatic implicature can thwart a common grammaticalization pathway: From location to completion in Horokoi                          | Matías Guzmán Naranjo &amp; Marvin MartinyErrors; mistakes and typological claims                                                                          | Adam James Ross Tallman et al.Quantifying misalignments in morphosyntactic and phonological domains in cross-linguistic perspective: a case study of the Americas        |

THURSDAY, 5 DECEMBER

|             |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                          |                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|-------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 8:30-10:30  | Poster exhibition @ SHHK Foyer                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                                          |                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| 9:30-10:30  | Morning tea                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                                                                                                                                                          |                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|             | Seminar Room 9 (Level B1)Workshop: Exploring the feasibility of integrating Radical Construction Grammar and The Creation of Meaning for language description and typological comparisonConvenors: Shihong Zhou & Lin Lu | Seminar Room 8 (Level 1)Workshop: Proper names and their morphosyntactic behavior – special or notConvenors: Thomas Stolz & Julia Nintemann | Seminar Room 7 (Level 1)Workshop: Understudied aspects of phasal polarityConvenors: Ljuba Veselinova, Anastasia Panova, & Bastian Persohn | Seminar Room 6 (Level 1)Workshop: Replication & reproducibility in quantitative typologyConvenors: Laura Becker, Matias Guzmán Naranjo, & Frederik Hartmann         | Conference Room (Level 5)Workshop: Valency and valency alternations within and across language boundariesConvenors: Guglielmo Inglesè, Silvia Luraghi, Chiara Zanchi, & Michael Daniel | HSS Auditorium (Level B1)Workshop: Dependency Grammar for TypologyConvenors: Erica Biagetti, Luca Brigada Villa, Andrew Dyer, Diego Alves, Annemarie Verkerk, & Luigi Talamo       |
| 10:30-11:00 | Workshop introductory talkRandy LaPollaBackground and key concepts of the two approaches and the motivation for bringing them together for a more empirical and comprehensive approach to typology and language description     | Thomas Stolz & Julia NintemannWorkshop Introduction by convenors                                                                                                     | Jeanette SakelPhasal polarity in Mosetén                                                                                                                           | Laura Becker, Matias Guzmán Naranjo, & Frederik HartmannWorkshop Introduction by convenors                                                                                                   | Anna BugaevaA diachronic study of anticausatives in Ainu                                                                                                                                                        | Erica Biagetti, Luca Brigada Villa, Andrew Dyer, Diego Alves, Annemarie Verkerk, & Luigi TalamoWorkshop Introduction by convenors                                                                           |
| 11:00-11:30 | Na LiuMapping the causative continuum in Mandarin: An empirical approach                                                                                                                                                                   | Yi-yang Cheng &amp; Andre GoderichCase Marker Syncretism and Proper Names in Matu'uwal Atayal, an Austronesian Language of Taiwan                             | Neige RochantThe eccentricities of phasal polarity in Pukur (Atlantic)                                                                                      | Frederic BlumReplicating sound symbolism: Overcoming bias and generalizability challenges in quantitative typology                                                                    | Gede Primahadi W. Rajeg, Charlotte Hemmings, I Wayan Arka, &amp; Engga Zakaria SangianEnggano Middle Voice and Valence Over Time                                                                         | Yanding GuoDependency Distance May Not Exhibit Significant Difference in Word Order Typology: A token-based Study Based on 'Dependency Dropping' Hypothesis                                          |
| 11:30-12:00 | Lin LuConstructing a Reference Grammar from a Typological Perspective: Integrating the Creation of Meaning Theory and Radical Construction Grammar—The Case of O.Thog Tibetan                                                              | Lukas DenkWhy Inverse Systems are Not Sensitive to Proper Names                                                                                               | Philipp TuchakPhasal polarity in an endangered idiom: the case of South Ladic                                                                               | Mae Carroll &amp; Sacha BeniamineA 'data-direct' typology of exponence                                                                                                                | So MiyagawaNoun Incorporation and Verbal Valency in Coptic from a Typological Perspective                                                                                                                | Hing-Yuet FungAn oblique case of asymmetry: Word orders in OV/VO languages and languages without a dominant word order                                                                               |
| 12:00-13:30 | Lunch                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |                                                                                                                                                                          |                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|             | Seminar Room 9 (Level B1)Workshop: Exploring the feasibility of integrating Radical Construction Grammar and The Creation of Meaning for language description and typological comparison (cont.)                                    | Seminar Room 8 (Level 1)Workshop: Proper names and their morphosyntactic behavior – special or not (cont.)                                             | Seminar Room 7 (Level 1)Workshop: Understudied aspects of phasal polarity (cont.)                                                                    | Seminar Room 6 (Level 1)Workshop: Replication & reproducibility in quantitative typology (cont.)                                                                               | Conference Room (Level 5)Workshop: Valency and valency alternations within and across language boundaries (cont.)                                                                                 | HSS Auditorium (Level B1)Workshop: Dependency Grammar for Typology (cont.)                                                                                                                    |
| 13:30-14:00 | Xu YangA Study of Bodily Sensation Events and Their Constructions in Mandarin Chinese                                                                                                                                                      | David ErschlerPersonal Names and Marking Split with Secondary Cases in Upper Bat Svan                                                                         | Irene GorbunovaPhasal Polarity in Telengut (Northern Altai)                                                                                                 | Daniel RossThe effects of terminological variation for large-scale typology: A comparison of rigorous typological surveys to Grambank entries                                         | Shan Cong, Nargil, Brigitte Pakendorf, &amp; Natalia StoyanovaValency patterns across Northern Tungusic: internal vs. contact-induced changes as revealed through corpora                                | Olga Nádvorníková &amp; Alexandr RosenCross-linguistic variations in syntactic complexity: insights from a multilingual parallel corpus                                                              |
| 14:00-14:30 | Zhou YaoResearch on the Tibetan Ergative Case Construction                                                                                                                                                                                 | Thomas StolzFamiliarity-based splits in the grammar of toponyms                                                                                               | Jessica K. Ivani &amp; Taras ZakharoAspects of phasal polarity in Suansu                                                                                    | Martin HaspelmathRobust and transparent database publication in typology: Language parameters and construction parameters in the CrossGram data registry                              | Giuseppina di BartoloVariation and change of valency patterns of Ancient Greek request verbs                                                                                                             | Antoni Brosa-Rodríguez, M. Dolores Jiménez-López, &amp; Adrià Torrens-UrrutiaA Gradient Language Universal (GLU) Model for Quantifying Typological Universality and Language Complexity from UD data |
| 14:30-15:00 | Tao ZhangA Typological Approach to Chinese Modal Auxiliary Construction: A case of Yao-MAC in Chinese                                                                                                                                      | Julia NintemannOn the special status of toponyms and anthroponyms in spatial constructions                                                                    | Cherry Chit-Yu LamNegative markers and the evolution of yes-no questions in Cantonese                                                                       | Hedvig Skirgård &amp; Annemarie VerkerkControlling for genealogical and spatial autocorrelation: what do(n't) we lose by sampling?                                                    | György RákosiDatives and for -PPs in competition: A diachronic change in Hungarian                                                                                                                | Natalia LevshinaThe number of core arguments in corpora with Universal Dependencies: The role of communicative efficiency and culture                                                                |
| 15:00-15:30 | Afternoon Tea                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                          |                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|             | Seminar Room 9 (Level B1)Workshop: Exploring the feasibility of integrating Radical Construction Grammar and The Creation of Meaning for language description and typological comparison (cont.)                                    | Seminar Room 8 (Level 1)Workshop: Proper names and their morphosyntactic behavior – special or not (cont.)                                             | Seminar Room 7 (Level 1)Workshop: Understudied aspects of phasal polarity (cont.)                                                                    | Seminar Room 6 (Level 1)Workshop: Replication & reproducibility in quantitative typology (cont.)                                                                               | Conference Room (Level 5)Workshop: Valency and valency alternations within and across language boundaries (cont.)                                                                                 | HSS Auditorium (Level B1)Workshop: Dependency Grammar for Typology (cont.)                                                                                                                    |
| 15:30-16:00 | Shihong ZhouSignaling Who Has the Rights to Know Better : Interpersonal Tag Constructions Marked by Particles Hao (好) and Ao (噯) in Northeastern Mandarin Chinese                                                                          | Wang Qi &amp; Anders HolmbergThe morphology of Chinese proper names                                                                                           | Anastasia PanovaOn dedicatedness of phasal polarity expressions: evidence from Gawarbatl (Indo-Aryan)                                                       | Antoni Brosa-RodríguezRevisitation of Greenbergian Dominant Basic Word Order in Computational Quantitative Typology                                                                   | Jacob MenschelBeyond voice: covert symmetrical diathesis alternations in Andoke (Northwestern Amazonia)                                                                                                  | Althea Löfgren, Santiago Herrera, Bruno Guillaume, Natalia Levshina, &amp; Sylvain KahaneExploring Sampling Strategies for Linguistic Diversity: A Comparative Analysis of UD Treebanks              |
| 16:00-16:30 | Huang XiyueThe passive constructions in Cuntou Tuha: An analysis based on Radical Construction Grammar                                                                                                                                     | Yu LiThe definiteness marking on proper names in Zauzou, a Tibeto-Burman language in China                                                                    | Ljuba Veselinova &amp; Tihomir RangelovPhasal polarity expressions: a cross-linguistic and intragenealogical study                                          | Colin Bannard, Emity Hanink, Jens Hopperditzel, Andrew Koontz-Garboden, &amp; Siena WeingartzBiases in the lexical category of property concept words: A reevaluation of Dixon (1982) | Sebastian Dom, Leora Bar-el, Ponsiano Kanijo, &amp; Malin PetzellThe noncausal/causal alternation: Variation and diachrony in selected Bantu languages                                                   | Yingqi Jing, Robert Östling, Joakim Nivre, &amp; Michael DunnMultilevel phylogenetic inference of syntactic harmony                                                                                  |
| 16:30-17:00 |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Maria Pupynina &amp; Yukari NagayamaSex-specific forms of personal names in Chukchi and Alutor                                                                | Iker Salaberri &amp; Borja Ariztimuño-LopezGrammaticalization of tense-aspect-mood and the typology of NOT YET expressions                                  | Megane LesuisseReproducibility & Diverging results for a typology of Motion events: Eight reasons why                                                                                 | Daria AlfimovaEach Baltic valency is Baltic in its own way: Evidence from a parallel corpus of film subtitles                                                                                            | Maria Bardaji, Elsie Marie T. Or, Angelina Aquino, &amp; Nikolaus P. HimmelmannThe challenges of symmetrical voice languages for Universal Dependencies                                              |
| 17:00-17:30 | Workshop discussion session                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Workshop discussion session                                                                                                                                       | Workshop discussion session                                                                                                                                     | Workshop discussion session                                                                                                                                                               | Martina Giuliani &amp; Claudia CorbettaIn the "middle" of Late Latin and Old Italian: analyzing the middle continuum through verb valency patterns and alternations                                      | Michael DunnThe Animacy Hierarchy derived from multilingual corpus data                                                                                                                              |
| 18:30-22:00 | Conference Banquet @ RSYC                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                                                                                                                                                                          |                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |

POSTERS

Sune Gregersen & Eva van Lier

A cross-linguistic survey of habitual markers

Lukas Denk

Allomorphs remain complex when they are prominent and frequent

Shelece Easterday

Are primal consonant inventory gaps diachronically stable?

Ian Joo & Yu-Yin Hsu

Comparing phonological profiles via Phonotacticon, a phonotactic database

Xiaoxue Sun

Correlations between Classifiers and Plurality

Yuan-Lin Mickey Yang

Cross the Domains or Not? Typological Implications of Toda Seediq Modal Auxiliaries

Kseniia Erokhina & Irene Gorbunova

Hiding behind my back: deictic system shift in Southern Ludian

Reb Nuñez

Imperatives in Marinduque Tagalog: Evidence of Aspectual Inflection

Elizabeth Zeitoun

Impersonal pronouns in Formosan languages

Stacy Fang-ching Teng

Inclusory pronominal constructions in Formosan languages

Nataliya Levkovych

Loan conjunctions in the languages of the world

Jayden Macklin-Cordes, Thomas Ennever, Mitchell Browne, & Maria Copot

Locative functions beyond space and time: Pama-Nyungan case semantics reflect ahistorical processes

Matthias Urban

Radical typology: root structure preferences and their conditioning factors across languages

Daniela Casartelli

Reported Speech Without Reporting Speech: A Typological Discussion

Na Song

Temporary vs. Permanent existential in Baoding (Sinitic): A function-based extension

Petr Kocharov & Lilit Kharatyan

The Classical Armenian Valency Lexicon

FRIDAY, 6 DECEMBER

|              |                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                            |
|--------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 9:00-10:00   | Plenary @ HSS Auditorium (Level B1)Speaker: Sami Honkasalo, recipient of the Pāṇini AwardTitle: Geshiza and cultural anchoring in descriptive grammars |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                            |
| 10:00-10:30  | Morning tea                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                            |
|              | SpaceSeminar Room 9 (Level B1)Chair: Michael Cysouw                                                                                                    | Tibeto-Burman/Linguistic AreasSeminar Room 8 (Level 1)Chair: David A. Peterson                                                                                                                                                   | Seminar Room 7 (Level 1)Workshop: Valency and valencyalternations within and acrosslanguage boundaries (cont.)                                               | Seminar Room 6 (Level 1)Workshop: DependencyGrammar for Typology (cont.)                                                             |
| 10:30-11:00  | Jonathon Lum, Eleanor Yacopetti,Laurits Stapput Knudsen, &amp; TomEnneverMonodirectionality and the intrinsicframe of reference                            | Lu Jun &amp; Na LiuHonorific Forms of PersonalPronouns in Tibeto-BurmanLanguages and Their TypologicalSignificance                                                                                                                          | Guglielmo Inglese &amp; Jean-Christophe VerstraeteAnticausative constructions inAustralian languages: a synchronicand diachronic typology                      | Diego AlvesMeasuring the effects of languagecontact using word-order entropy:The case of Nheengatu                                      |
| 11:00-11:30  | Maike VorholtOn Maltese prepositions incoordinating constructions                                                                                                    | Shobhana Chelliah &amp; GraysonZieglerFacilitating typological comparisonacross Tibeto-Burman languagesusing Hierarchical InterlinearGlossed Text (HIGT)                                                                               | Victor Bogren SvenssonReduction in the Austronesian VoiceSystem in Takituduh Bunun                                                                                      | Hedvig SkirgårdUsing UD to explore cross-linguisticstructural complexity                                                                    |
| 11:30-12:00  | Shogo MizunoAxial forms exhibit stronger cohesionwith the ground nominal thandirectional markers                                                                 | Andrey DrinfeldThe case for a Trans-Asian linguisticarea                                                                                                                                                                                            | Yang XiaoVerb-Marked Voice or Beyond? –Benefactives in Three SiniticLanguages                                                                                       | Phillip G. RogersMissing the forest for the trees: Therole of syntactic distributionalinformation in the architecture of thelexicon |
| 12:00-13:30  | Lunch                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                            |
|              | ComparativesSeminar Room 9 (Level B1)Chair: Tamisha Tan                                                                                                | OceanicSeminar Room 8 (Level 1)Chair: Ian Joo                                                                                                                                                                                         | Diachrony/NegationSeminar Room 7 (Level 1)Chair: Hedvig Skirgård                                                                                          | InterrogativesSeminar Room 6 (Level 1)Chair: Umarani Pappuswamy                                                               |
| 13:30- 14:00 | Martin Haspelmath &amp; ShogoMizunoSome universals of comparativeconstructions: Revisiting Greenberg,Stassen and Heine                                      | Lidia Federica MazzitelliPassive constructions in Oceaniclanguages: typology and variation                                                                                                                                                          | Sonia CristofaroTypological explanations insynchrony and diachrony: Theemergence of accusative alignmentin case marking cross-linguistically                    | Hongmei FangEcho answers                                                                                                                        |
| 14:00-14:30  | Zhou BeiDegree markers: a typologyperspective                                                                                                                        | Alexandre FrançoisMorphogenesis from generic nouns:Insights from Vanuatu                                                                                                                                                                            | Sasha WilmothFrom nominal to verbal negation inWestern Desert (Pama-Nyungan): analternative Negative Existential Cycle                                              | Tianhua LuoRethinking interrogative verbs: Atypological rum                                                                                 |
| 14:30-15:00  | Sami HonkasaloCumulative comparatives: At thecrossroads of aspect andcomparative constructions?                                                                  | Daniel KraußeMoving into the periphery:Adpositional verbs in Melanesia                                                                                                                                                                              | Olga Krasnoukhova, Shahar Shirtz,&amp; Annemarie VerkerkTypology and diachrony of negationacross three predication domains:The case of Indo-European.          | Siyu Liu &amp; Michael CysouwComparative categories for contentinterrogatives                                                               |
| 15:00-15:30  | Afternoon tea                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                            |
|              | CausalitySeminar Room 9 (Level B1)Chair: David Erschler                                                                                                | MotionSeminar Room 8 (Level 1)Chair: Lin Jingxia                                                                                                                                                                                      | AustronesianSeminar Room 7 (Level 1)Chair: Tamisha Tan                                                                                                    | TorricelliSeminar Room 6 (Level 1)Chair: TBA                                                                                  |
| 15:30-16:00  | Guglielmo Inglese, Fabio Gasparini,&amp; Maurizio VianoBasic valency in Semitic: acomparative diachronic outlook                                                | Yo Matsumoto, AnnaBordilovskaya, Kiyoko Eguchi,Sakura Ishikawa, Yuko Morokuma,&amp; Yuko YoshinariThe progressive and the attainmentof a goal in motion-eventdescriptions: evidence from acrosslinguistic experimental study | I Wayan ArkaExploring the Attrition and Demise ofSymmetricality in Austronesian VoiceSystems: Insights from BarrierIslands Languages of Indonesia andBeyond | Andrey Drinfeld &amp; Jose AntonioJódar-Sánchez‘And’ verbs in Torricelli languages:description, typology, and diachrony                |
| 16:00-16:30  | Daria BelovaTowards the semantic typology ofpermissive causatives                                                                                                    | Christine Lamarre, Na Song, &amp;Kemin SunAssociated Motion markers andDirectionals in Sinitic languages                                                                                                                                       | Maria Bardaji i FarreVerum existentials in westernAustronesian: a further case for thetypology of existential constructions                                         |                                                                                                                                                            |
| 16:30-17:00  | ALT Business Meeting @ HSS Auditorium                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                            |
| 17:00-17:30  | Closing Address @ HSS Auditorium                                                                                                                                             |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                            |