Are Mathematics Students' Learning Styles Related to Their Preferred Method of Learning How to Use Advanced Calculators?

by Dr. Hazel Tan

Hazel is a lecturer and an early career academic. Her areas of research and teaching interest are senior secondary mathematics education, educational technology, and international comparative studies. She has used innovative digital technologies in various research studies. Before moving into academia Hazel worked as a senior secondary mathematics teacher and head of department, and as an educational technology officer for the Singaporean Ministry of Education. This prior experience provided a solid foundation for her current academic work.
