The Cambridge Mathematics Project – Successes and Challenges

By Lynne McClure

The Cambridge Mathematics project is funded by the University of Cambridge. In order to support curriculum coherence, we are designing a digital tool from which we will be able to surface different curricula for different purposes, linked to research, classroom tasks and professional development.

Lynne McClure previously directed NRICH and Underground Maths, both also at the University of Cambridge. Her career spanned teaching, headship of a primary school, and Principal Lecturer. She is a well-known author, conference speaker and PD lead. Lynne sits on the Advisory Committee on Mathematics Education, is Executive Chair of ISDDE and a past president of the MA.

All are welcome!
